The Institute

The African Institute of International Law is an autonomous Regional International organization established in January 2012 “to contribute actively to the promotion and building of the rule of law in Africa” and “to promote study, research and analysis on international legal matters of particular interest and relevance to African countries and to foster the teaching and dissemination of international law in Africa”.

The African Union Assembly underscored “the strategic importance of such an institute dedicated to offering higher learning and research in international law and the law of the African Union needed for the development of Africa” and recognized “the important role that the African Institute of International Law will play in building the capacity of African Faculties of Law and African Lawyers in dealing with various aspects of International and African Union Law” (Decision AU/14 (XVIII) Add. 5 of January 2012).

Taking note of the establishment of the Institute, the United Nations General Assembly welcomed its creation and regularly encourages the UN Secretariat to cooperate with the Institute through the Codification Division of its Office of Legal Affairs (see e.g., Resolution 67/466 of 21 November 2012, Resolution 74/185 of 27 December 2019, Resolution 77/102 of 7 December 2022 and Resolution 78/107 of 7 December 2023, in which the General Assembly “Once again encourages the Codification Division to cooperate with the African Institute of International Law, dedicated to offering higher learning and research in international law needed for the development of Africa, in the implementation of the relevant activities under the Programme of Assistance” (para. 22).

The seat of the Institute is in Arusha, Tanzania. Dubbed the “judicial capital of Africa”, Arusha is also the seat of several regional and international institutions including the East African Community, the East African Court of Justice, the African Court on Human and Peoples’ Rights, the African Union Advisory Board Against Corruption, and the United Nations Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals. It also hosts other government and non-governmental African and international institutions that apply or subscribe to public international law, African Union law and the public law of Africa on a daily basis.

Since its establishment, the Institute has conducted many significant training and capacity-building activities for experts from African States and beyond on many subjects in the fields of public international law, as well as African Union Law, the public law of Africa, and African regional integration law.

Objectives of the Summer Academy

The objective of this two-week Summer Academy on African Union Law and the Public Law of Africa is to provide the participants with a better knowledge of the history, content and specificities of this normative system. It aims to provide a deeper understanding of the collective practices and attitudes of African States towards international law.

The course will consist of lectures delivered by leading African scholars, judges and practitioners of international law and African Union Law. The lectures will analyse various legal instruments which derive from and aim at developing the principles upheld by the African Union and its predecessor, the Organisation of African Unity. Altogether, the lectures will offer a concise and clear picture of the normative system devised to realize the objectives of these Pan-African organizations, which reflect the innermost aspirations of African peoples.

The Course is also intended to foster a better understanding of the origins, principles and objectives, structure, organs, and scope of operation of the African Union and African Regional Economic Communities (RECs).

In contrast to the OAU Charter, the Constitutive Act of the African Union establishes a new set of principles. Indeed, in addition to the right of intervention of the AU in a member State, without its consent, to prevent war crimes, genocide and crimes against humanity, the Constitutive Act contains a number of principles which might be considered ground-breaking in the context of the evolution of "African international law". Thus, it provides for: the right of Member States to request intervention from the Union in order to restore peace and security, the promotion of gender equality, respect for democratic principles, human rights, the rule of law and good governance, respect for the sanctity of human life, condemnation and rejection of impunity and political assassination, acts of terrorism and subversive activities, and enunciates the condemnation and rejection by the AU of unconstitutional changes of government.
